NO. 4:21-CV-5119-TOR

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION AND TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER, AND GRANTING FEDERAL DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS

BEFORE THE COURT are Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Injunction

and Temporary Restraining Order (ECF No. 19) and Federal Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 36). This matter was submitted for consideration with telephonic oral argument on November 18, 2021. Plaintiff Joseph B. Jensen, Sr., proceeding pro se, appeared on behalf of the plaintiffs. Camille M. McDorman and Jeffrey T. Even appeared on behalf of State Defendants. John T. Drake and Molly M.S. Smith appeared on behalf of Federal Defendants. The Court has reviewed the record and files herein, considered the parties' oral arguments, and is fully informed. For the reasons discussed below, Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Injunction and Temporary Restraining Order (ECF No. 19) is DENIED and Federal Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 26) is GRANTED.

BACKGROUND

This case concerns President Biden's Executive Order Nos. 14042 and 14043 (collectively the "Executive Orders") requiring COVID-19 vaccination for federal employees and federal contractors, and Governor Inslee's Proclamation 21-14 et seq. (the "Proclamation") requiring COVID-19 vaccination for state employees and contractors. Plaintiff Jensen ("Plaintiff") states he is employed by a federal government subcontractor and is, thus, subject to the Executive Orders. ECF Nos. 1 at 3, ¶ 5; 32 at 3, ¶ 6. Plaintiff does not specify in his pleadings who his employer is; however, Plaintiff affirmed at oral argument that he is subject to the Executive Orders. Plaintiff states he was informed by his employer on September 30, 2021 that he would be subject to the Executive Orders. ECF No. 32 at 6, ¶ 25. There is a communication from Hanford Mission Integration Solutions addressed to "All HMIS Employees" dated September 30, 2021. ECF No. 21-1 at 10.

Plaintiff also states he is a registered member of the Washington Interscholastic Athletics Association ("WIAA") and the Washington Officials Association ("WOA") and is certified to coach high school athletics. ECF No. 32 at 3, ¶ 6. At oral argument, Plaintiff indicated he earns a "game fee" for his services, but stated the fee equates to something less than minimum wage. Plaintiff claims he was told by WIAA and WOA that "officials would not be subject to the" Proclamation. Id. at 5, ¶ 16. However, Plaintiff indicates he was later informed that the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction for Washington State determined that high school sports officials are considered to be "engaged[d] in or in fact engages in work while physically present at a building, facility, jobsite, project site, unit, or other defined area owned, leased, occupied by, or controlled by . . . an operator of an Educational Setting." ECF No. 32 at 6, ¶ 22. This language is found under the Proclamation's definition for "on-site volunteer" and "on-site contractor," both of which fall under the definition of "worker" for the purposes of the Proclamation's applicability. ECF No. 21-1 at 48, at 51–52.

On August 23, 2021, Plaintiff, proceeding pro se, filed a Complaint on behalf of himself and others similarly situated, and his minor child, alleging various federal constitutional and statutory violations stemming from the Executive Orders and the Proclamation. ECF No. 1. Plaintiff filed a First Supplement to Complaint on October 19, 2021. ECF No. 32. On October 15, 2021, Plaintiff filed a Motion for Preliminary Injunction and Temporary Restraining Order. ECF No. 19. State and Federal Defendants (collectively "Defendants") oppose the motion. ECF Nos. 37, 38. Additionally, Federal Defendants filed a Motion to Dismiss on October 29, 2021, seeking dismissal of all claims alleged against Federal Defendants. ECF No. 36. Plaintiff conceded at oral argument that his claims against Federal Defendants should be dismissed with the option to amend.

The Court will first address the Motion to Dismiss and then the Motion for Preliminary Injunction and Temporary Restraining Order.

DISCUSSION

I. Legal Standard—Motion to Dismiss

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure permit a party to seek dismissal through several avenues, two of which are asserted here. First, motions to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(1) challenge the subject matter jurisdiction of an action. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(1). The challenge to subject matter jurisdiction can be asserted in one of two ways: through a "facial attack" or a "factual attack." Leite v. Crane Co., 749 F.3d 1117, 1121 (9th Cir. 2014). Here, Federal Defendants challenge purely legal questions and do not challenge Plaintiff's factual assertions. ECF No.

36. A facial attack accepts the truth of the plaintiff's allegations but challenges the sufficiency of the complaint's allegation to invoke federal jurisdiction. Leite, 749 F.3d at 1121. Courts resolve facial challenges as they would a motion to dismiss under 12(b)(6). Id. Accordingly, courts consider the motion by evaluating the complaint on its face. See Safe Air for Everyone v. Meyer, 373 F.3d 1035, 1039 (9th Cir. 2004).

Second, a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6) "tests the legal sufficiency" of the plaintiff's claims. Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001); Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6). To withstand dismissal, a complaint must contain "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face." Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). "A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged." Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (citation omitted). This requires the plaintiff to provide "more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements." Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555. While a plaintiff need not establish a probability of success on the merits, he or she must demonstrate "more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully." Igbal, 556 U.S. at 678.

When analyzing whether a claim has been stated, the Court may consider the "complaint, materials incorporated into the complaint by reference, and matters of which the court may take judicial notice." *Metzler Inv. GMBH v. Corinthian*Colleges, Inc., 540 F.3d 1049, 1061 (9th Cir. 2008) (citing Tellabs, Inc. v. Makor Issues & Rights, Ltd., 551 U.S. 308, 322 (2007)). A complaint must contain "a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief."

Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2). A plaintiff's "allegations of material fact are taken as true and construed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff[,]" however "conclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim." In re Stac Elecs. Sec. Litig., 89 F.3d 1399, 1403 (9th Cir. 1996) (citation and brackets omitted).

In assessing whether Rule 8(a)(2) has been satisfied, a court must first identify the elements of the plaintiff's claim(s) and then determine whether those elements could be proven on the facts pled. The court may disregard allegations that are contradicted by matters properly subject to judicial notice or by exhibit. Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001). The court may also disregard conclusory allegations and arguments which are not supported by reasonable deductions and inferences. Id.

The Court "does not require detailed factual allegations, but it demands more than an unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation." Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 662. "To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face." Id. at 678 (citation omitted). A claim may be dismissed only if "it appears beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim which would entitle him to relief." Navarro, 250 F.3d at 732.

A. Plaintiff's Claims on Behalf of Others

Federal Defendants first challenge pro se Plaintiff's ability to assert claims on behalf of Plaintiff's minor child and "others similarly situated." ECF No. 36 at 4. "It is well established that the privilege to represent oneself pro se . . . is personal to the litigant and does not extend to other parties or entities." Simon v. Hartford Life, Inc., 546 F.3d 661, 664 (9th Cir. 2008). Courts routinely reject pro se plaintiffs' attempts to bring claims on behalf of others in a representative capacity. Id. (collecting cases). Plaintiff conceded at oral argument that he may not represent anyone other than himself. Accordingly, any claims brought on behalf of Plaintiff's minor child or "others similarly situated" are dismissed.

Federal Defendants also seek dismissal of any claims asserted against President Biden's Executive Order No. 14043 because Plaintiff lacks standing. ECF No. 36 at 5. On September 9, 2021, President Biden issued two Executive Orders: No. 14042 and No. 14043. See Smith v. President Biden, No. 1:21-CV-19457, 2021 WL 5195688, at *2 (D.N.J. Nov. 8, 2021). Executive Order 14043 requires all federal employees to be fully vaccinated; the Safer Federal Workforce Task Force (the "Task Force") issued guidance on September 13, 2021 clarifying the deadline for federal employees to be fully vaccinated is November 22, 2021. Id.

Executive Order 14042 essentially requires employers who contract with the federal government to ensure their employees are fully vaccinated. Id. This is achieved by requiring federal departments and agencies to introduce new contractual clauses that require covered contractors and subcontractors to comply with the guidance provided by the Task Force. Id. The Task Force issued guidance on September 23, 2021 stating that covered contractor employees need to be fully vaccinated by December 8, 2021. Id.

Federal Defendants argue Plaintiff lacks standing because Plaintiff is not subject to the provisions of Executive Order 14043, nor does he face threats of having the provisions applied to him. ECF No. 36 at 5. Plaintiff's First Supplement to Complaint states he was informed by his employer on September 30, 2021 that "President Biden's Executive Order on Ensuring Adequate COVID Safety Protocols for Federal Contractors" applies to contractor and subcontractor employees, and those individuals would "need to be fully vaccinated by December 8, unless exempted for religious or medical reasons." ECF No. 32 at 6, ¶ 25. Plaintiff's Complaint states he is "employed by a federal government sub-contractor." ECF No. 1 at 3, \P 5. Moreover, Plaintiff confirmed at oral argument that he is subject to the Executive Orders.

To establish standing in federal court, a plaintiff must demonstrate three elements: (1) plaintiff must have suffered an injury in fact that is concrete and particularized, and actual or imminent; (2) there must be a causal connection between the injury and the challenged conduct that is fairly traceable to the defendant's actions; and (3) it must be "likely" as opposed to "speculative" that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992). Additionally, courts will consider "whether the alleged injury is more than a mere generalized grievance, whether the plaintiff is asserting her own rights or the rights of third parties, and whether the claim falls within the zone of interests to be protected or regulated by the constitutional guarantee in question." Wolfson v. Brammer, 616 F.3d 1045, 1056 (9th Cir. 2010) (internal quotations and citation omitted). The party invoking federal jurisdiction bears the burden of establishing these elements. Lujan, 504 U.S. at 561.

Even though Plaintiff is subject to the Executive Orders, Plaintiff does not have standing to challenge them at this time because he has not alleged a particularized injury in fact that is actual or imminent. After spending a great deal of his pleadings explaining the development of the COVID-19 pandemic, the various responses by national governments and international organizations, as well as the development of several COVID-19 vaccines, Plaintiff fails to articulate how he has been personally affected by any of the described circumstances. ECF Nos. 1 at 5–16, $\P\P$ 14–61; 32 at 5–6, $\P\P$ 15–25.

Plaintiff takes particular issue with the vaccination requirements for federal employees and contractors under President Biden's Executive Orders, but again, Plaintiff does not articulate how he has been, or will be, harmed by the Orders. Plaintiff has not given any indication of his vaccination status with regard to COVID-19; if Plaintiff is not currently vaccinated, he has not indicated whether or not he intends to comply with the Executive Orders' vaccination requirements. Further, if Plaintiff fails to comply, he has not articulated whether he faces any adverse consequences. In any event, the deadlines to comply with the Executive Orders have not yet passed; thus, any possible adverse consequences Plaintiff may face are purely speculative at this point, which is insufficient to establish standing. Clapper v. Amnesty Intern. USA, 568 U.S. 398, 410-14 (2013). Therefore, Plaintiff has failed to establish standing to pursue any claims against Executive Order Nos. 14042 and 14043.

B. Crimes Against Humanity, Betrayal of Public Trust

Counts 37–40, 41, and 43–46 allege Federal Defendants have committed "crimes against humanity" and betrayed the public's trust. ECF No. 1 at 22–24, ¶¶ 111–20, 127–32. Federal Defendants move for dismissal on the grounds that failed to state a claim on which relief may be granted. ECF No. 36 at 5–11.

Plaintiff lacks standing to pursue generalized claims and because Plaintiff has

As previously discussed, Plaintiff must have suffered a particularized harm or be under imminent threat of harm in order to establish standing. Plaintiff has failed to meet this burden for the alleged crimes against humanity and betrayal of public trust because he alleges only generalized harm on behalf of the public at large; Plaintiff does not allege he personally has suffered a harm. See ECF No. 1 at 22–24, ¶¶ 111–20, 127–32. Moreover, Plaintiff cites to no legal authority that would provide relief for the alleged wrongful conduct. Consequently, dismissal of Counts 37–40, 41, and 43–46 is proper because Plaintiff lacks standing and because he has failed to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.

C. Vaccine Emergency Use Authorization

Count 47 alleges Defendants Dr. Fauci, CDC, FDA, and NIH violated the Food, Drug, and Cosmetics Act ("FDCA"), 21 U.S.C § 360bbb-3(c)(3), by granting Emergency Use Authorizations ("EUA") for the COVID-19 vaccines. ECF No. 1 at 24, ¶¶ 133–34. It is unclear whether Plaintiff is challenging only the EUA itself or the FDA's rulemaking authority to issue EUAs. Federal Defendants move to dismiss the claim on the grounds that Plaintiff has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies, and because the Administrative Procedure Act ("APA") prohibits judicial review of EUAs. ECF No. 36 at 7.

Interested parties who wish to challenge an FDA regulation, like the EUA for COVID-19 vaccines, are required to exhaust administrative remedies before filing suit in federal court. Ass'n of Am. Physicians & Surgeons, Inc. v. Food & Drug Admin., 539 F. Supp. 2d 4, 21 (D.D.C. 2008) (citing 21 C.F.R. §§ 10.30, 10.25). Plaintiff has not indicated that he has taken any steps to exhaust his administrative remedies. Accordingly, Plaintiff may not pursue his claim challenging the issuance of the EUA in this Court.

Additionally, the Court cannot grant the relief Plaintiff seeks for this claim because judicial review is unavailable for decisions that are committed to agency discretion as a matter of law. City & Cty. of San Francisco v. U.S. Dep't of Transp., 796 F.3d 993, 1001 (9th Cir. 2015) (quoting 5 U.S.C. § 701(a)(2)). Here, the provisions of the FDCA expressly reserve decisions regarding EUAs to agency discretion. 21 U.S.C. §360bbb-3(i) ("Actions under the authority of this section by the Secretary, by the Secretary of Defense, or by the Secretary of Homeland Security are committed to agency discretion."). Thus, Plaintiff has failed to state a claim on which relief may be granted.

Count 47 challenging the EUA for the COVID-19 vaccines is properly dismissed because Plaintiff has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies and because Plaintiff has not stated a claim upon which relief may be granted.

D. Bivens Claims

Counts 24–36 allege Defendants Dr. Fauci, CDC, FDA, and NIH conspired to violate Plaintiff's and the American people's constitutional rights by spreading misinformation about COVID-19 and its available treatments. ECF No. 1 at 21–22, ¶¶ 102–10. Federal Defendants move to dismiss on the grounds that Plaintiff's claims do not fall within the scope of a Bivens cause of action; Plaintiff's claims against Defendants CDC, FDA, and NIH are improper; and Plaintiff lacks standing to pursue a Bivens claim on behalf of the "American people." ECF No. 36 at 7–8.

As an initial matter, Plaintiff's pro se status prohibits him from asserting claims on behalf of anyone but himself. Simon, 546 F.3d at 664. Additionally, Plaintiff may not assert a Bivens claim against Defendants CDC, FDA, and NIH because Bivens claims cannot be brought against federal agencies. F.D.I.C. v. Meyer, 510 U.S. 471, 484–86 (1994). Thus, Plaintiff's Bivens claims asserted on behalf of the "American people" are dismissed, as are the Bivens claims asserted against Defendants CDC, FDA, and NIH.

As to remaining Defendant Dr. Fauci, Plaintiff alleges violations of his First, Ninth, and Tenth Amendment rights. ECF No. 1 at 21–22, ¶¶ 102–10. Plaintiff's claims fail as a matter of law. The Supreme Court has stated there are only three instances in which the Court has recognized an implied damages remedy under the Constitution: violations of the Fourth Amendment based on unreasonable search and seizure (Bivens v. Six Unknown Fed'l Narcotics Agents, 403 U.S. 388 (1971)); violations of the Fifth Amendment based on gender discrimination (Davis v. Passman, 442 U.S. 228 (1979)); and violations of the Eighth Amendment based on the denial of medical care for serious medical conditions (Carlson v. Green, 446 U.S. 14 (1980)). Ziglar v. Abbasi, 137 S. Ct. 1843, 1855 (2017). Thus, Bivens implied causes of action are available under a very limited set of circumstances, none of which are present here.

First, it is unclear which of his First Amendment rights Plaintiff believes were violated. He claims a right to "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness," but this language, of course, is pulled from the Declaration of Independence, not the United States Constitution. In any event, Plaintiff's claims do not fall within the scope of permissible Bivens causes of action. Second, "the ninth amendment has never been recognized as independently securing any constitutional right, for purposes of pursuing a civil rights claim." Strandberg v. City of Helena, 791 F.2d 744, 748 (9th Cir. 1996). Similarly, the Tenth Amendment does not permit a private right of action. Bimber's Delwood, Inc. v. James, 496 F. Supp. 3d 760, 786–87 (W.D.N.Y. 2020). Thus, Plaintiff's Ninth and Tenth Amendment claims cannot survive without an articulated civil rights violation, which Plaintiff has failed to plead.

Consequently, Plaintiff has failed to state a cognizable Bivens cause of action against Defendants Dr. Fauci, CDC, FDA, and NIH. Counts 24–36 are properly dismissed because Plaintiff has failed to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.

E. Constitutional Claims Against Defendant Biden

Plaintiff asserts a variety of federal constitutional violations in Counts 1–5 and 6–11, including intrusion of bodily autonomy, imposition of cruel and unusual punishment, unlawful seizures of liberty, and others. ECF Nos. 1 at 17–19, ¶¶ 62–82; 32 at 7, ¶ 27–34. Federal Defendants move to dismiss the claims on the grounds that Plaintiff seeks only declaratory and injunctive relief against President Biden, and the Court lacks jurisdiction to enter such relief against a President. ECF No. 36 at 8.

The principles of separation-of-powers generally counsel courts against granting injunctive and declaratory relief against the President in the performance of his official duties unless he has no authority to act in the first place. Rosebud Sioux Tribe v. Trump, 428 F. Supp. 3d 282, 291 (D. Mont. 2019) (citing Franklin v. Massachusetts, 505 U.S. 788, 802–03 (1992) (plurality)). Courts may, however, enjoin executive orders, or portions thereof, where the order "exceeds the statutory authority delegated by Congress and constitutional boundaries." Id. (quoiting Hawaii v. Trump, 859 F.3d 741, 768 (9th Cir. 2017) (dismissed as moot, 138 S. Ct. 377 (2017)).

Federal Defendants argue Plaintiff seeks injunctive and declaratory relief against the President. ECF No. 36 at 9. However, liberally construing Plaintiff's Complaint, it appears Plaintiff is seeking relief against President Biden's Executive Orders, not the President personally. Plaintiff repeatedly asserts "Biden's order" or "Biden's vaccine mandate" is unconstitutional and exceeds the President's authority. See, e.g., ECF Nos. 1 at 17–18, ¶¶ 62–71; 32 at 7, ¶¶ 27–34. Because granting injunctive or declaratory relief against an Executive Order is within the power of the courts, Plaintiff could, theoretically, challenge President Biden's Executive Order Nos. 14042 and 14043.

However, as previously discussed, Plaintiff lacks standing at this time to challenge these Executive Orders because he has not stated a particularized harm that is actual or imminent. Plaintiff has not alleged that he has been forcibly subjected to COVID-19 testing nor has he alleged he has been forced to submit to a COVID-19 vaccine. In fact, Plaintiff acknowledges there are alternatives to the vaccination requirement in the form of religious or medical exemptions. ECF No. 32 at 5, ¶ 20. Alternatively, Plaintiff could seek employment outside the federal government and avoid being subject to the Executive Orders. Furthermore, any harm Plaintiff is attempting to allege is purely speculative at this point because the deadlines to comply with the Executive Orders have not yet passed. Therefore, dismissal of Counts 1–5 and 6–11 is proper because Plaintiff has failed to establish standing to challenge the Executive Orders.

Based on the foregoing, the Court grants Federal Defendants' Motion to Dismiss (ECF No. 36). Counts 1–5 and 6–11 are dismissed without prejudice. If Plaintiff is able to establish standing at a later date, he may pursue claims against the Executive Orders. Counts 24–36, 37–40, 41, 43–46, and 47 are dismissed with prejudice.

The Court next turns to Plaintiff's Motion for Preliminary Injunction and Temporary Restraining Order (ECF No. 19). Because the remaining claims pertain only to State Defendants, the Court will not address any claims raised in Plaintiff's motion that relate to Federal Defendants.

II. Legal Standard—Preliminary Injunction

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 65, a district court may grant a temporary restraining order (TRO) to prevent "immediate and irreparable injury." Fed. R. Civ. P. 65(b)(1)(A). The analysis for granting a temporary restraining order is "substantially identical" to that for a preliminary injunction. Stuhlbarg Int'l Sales Co., Inc. v. John D. Brush & Co., 240 F.3d 832, 839 n.7 (9th Cir. 2001). It "is an extraordinary remedy never awarded as of right." Winter v. Nat. Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 24 (2008).

To obtain this relief, a plaintiff must demonstrate: (1) a likelihood of success on the merits; (2) a likelihood of irreparable injury in the absence of preliminary relief; (3) that a balancing of the hardships weighs in plaintiff's favor; and (4) that a preliminary injunction will advance the public interest. Winter, 555 U.S. at 20; M.R. v. Dreyfus, 697 F.3d 706, 725 (9th Cir. 2012). Under the Winter test, a plaintiff must satisfy each element for injunctive relief.

Alternatively, the Ninth Circuit also permits a "sliding scale" approach under which an injunction may be issued if there are "serious questions going to the merits" and "the balance of hardships tips sharply in the plaintiff's favor," assuming the plaintiff also satisfies the two other Winter factors. All. for the Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1131 (9th Cir. 2011) ("[A] stronger showing of one element may offset a weaker showing of another."); *see also Farris v.*Seabrook, 677 F.3d 858, 864 (9th Cir. 2012) ("We have also articulated an alternate formulation of the Winter test, under which serious questions going to the merits and a balance of hardships that tips sharply towards the plaintiff can support issuance of a preliminary injunction, so long as the plaintiff also shows that there is a likelihood of irreparable injury and that the injunction is in the public interest." (internal quotation marks and citation omitted)).

A. Likelihood of Success on the Merits

Plaintiff claims Governor Inslee's Proclamation, which requires certain state employees and contractors be fully vaccinated, violates his constitutional rights.

ECF Nos. 1, 32. Despite alleging numerous violations, Plaintiff raises only two issues in the present motion: alleged violations of his "fundamental right to pr an se m

privacy, informed consent, bodily integrity, bodily autonomy, and the right to die," and alleged violations the Fourth Amendment's prohibition against unreasonable search and seizure. ECF No. 21 at 21–22. To obtain injunctive relief, Plaintiff must show that there are "serious questions going to the merits" of his claims, and that he is likely to succeed on the merits. Cottrell, 632 F.3d at 1131; Farris, 677 F.3d at 865.

1. Right to Privacy, Bodily Integrity, etc.

Plaintiff argues the Proclamation infringes on his substantive due process rights and must survive strict scrutiny. ECF No. 21 at 14–23. State Defendants argue the Proclamation does not infringe upon any fundamental rights and is subject to rational basis, which it easily survives. ECF No. 38 at 11.

As an initial matter, Plaintiff seeks "appropriate declaratory relief regarding the unconstitutionality, facially and as applied, of the Washington State Executive Order on Vaccination and Testing" for violations of Plaintiff's asserted right to bodily autonomy, informed consent, and right to refuse medical care; Plaintiff does not assert any violations of his religious rights. ECF Nos. 21 at 15; 32 at 8. "[T]he two tests for whether a law is neutral and generally applicable focus on whether a law specifically targets or singles out religion." Parents for Priv. v. Barr, 949 F.3d 1210, 1234–35 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 141 S. Ct. 894, 208 L. Ed. 2d 452 (2020). Thus, Plaintiff has not advanced an as-applied challenge to the Proclamation because he claims no violations of his religious liberties. The Court will address only the facial challenge.

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFFS' MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION AND TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER, AND GRANTING FEDERAL DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS ~ 20

"To succeed on a facial challenge, the challenger must establish that no set of circumstances exists under which the regulation would be valid." Doe v.

Zucker, 496 F. Supp. 3d 744, 754 (N.D.N.Y. 2020) (internal brackets omitted).

Judicial review of facial challenges is limited to the text of the law or regulation itself. Young v. Hawaii, 992 F.3d 765, 779 (9th Cir. 2021). Facial challenges are more difficult to prove than as-applied challenges. Id. Plaintiff argues the Proclamation is facially unconstitutional because it infringes on Plaintiff's "right to privacy, informed consent, bodily integrity, bodily autonomy, and the right to die." ECF No. 21 at 14.

Plaintiff's argument is not persuasive. First, while Plaintiff has a fundamental right to privacy, he does not have a fundamental right to refuse a vaccine. Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U.S. 11, 26–27 (1905); Norris v. Stanley, ---F. Supp. 3d---, No. 1:21-CV-756, 2021 WL 4738827, at *2 (W.D. Mich. Oct. 8, 2021); Williams v. Brown, ---F. Supp. 3d---, No. 6:21-CV-01332-AA, 2021 WL 4894264, at *8 (D. Or. Oct. 19, 2021). Second, the Proclamation does not require individuals to get vaccinated; it simply creates employment requirements for certain state workers. As our sister court in the Western District explained, "The State is not forcing its employees to receive an injection against their will. They have a choice. The choice is vaccination or no longer working for the State." ECF No. 39-1 at 191.

Relatedly, Plaintiff does not have a constitutionally protected interest in his continued employment as a coach or sports officiant. Massachusetts Bd. of Ret. v. Murgia, 427 U.S. 307, 313 (1976); Norris, 2021 WL 4738827, at *2 (explaining that employer vaccine requirements do not force employees to forgo their rights to privacy and bodily autonomy, but if employees choose not to get vaccinated, they do not have a right to remain employed). Moreover, the Proclamation recognizes legally permissible exemptions. ECF No. 21-1 at 19–27. Based on the plain text of the Proclamation, there is no invasion of Plaintiff's right to bodily integrity; Plaintiff can choose to get vaccinated, choose to apply for an exemption, or choose to coach and officiate elsewhere. Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate there are no circumstances under which the Proclamation would be valid.

Next, the Court turns to Plaintiff's argument that the Proclamation does not survive strict scrutiny. ECF No. 21 at 15. Federal courts routinely analyze challenges to employer-based vaccine requirements under rational basis. See, e.g., Klaassen v. Trustees of Indiana Univ., --- F. Supp. 3d ---, No. 1:21-CV-238 DRL, 2021 WL 3073926, at *20 (N.D. Ind. July 18, 2021); Williams v. Brown, No. ---F. Supp. 3d.---, 6:21-CV-01332-AA, 2021 WL 4894264, at *8 (D. Or. Oct. 19, 2021). Nonetheless, for the purposes of the present motion, the Court need not decide which standard should apply because the Proclamation survives both strict scrutiny and rational basis. First, the Supreme Court has endorsed the "compelling" interest in slowing the spread of COVID-19. Roman Cath. Diocese of Brooklyn v. Cuomo, 141 S. Ct. 63, 67 (2020). The Proclamations is narrowly tailored in that it applies to specific employment sectors whose workers are essential to combatting COVID-19 and who come into regular contact with large segments of the public.

Moreover, the State has a legitimate government interest in preventing the spread of COVID-19. Jacobsen v. Massachusetts, 197 U.S. 11 (1905); Slidewaters LLC v. Washington State Dep't of Lab. & Indus., 4 F.4th 747, 758 (9th Cir. 2021). The Proclamation is rationally related to that interest because it is based on overwhelming evidence that the vaccines are safe and effective, and increasing vaccination rates among state workers who come into regular contact with members of the public is a rational action to reduce the spread of COVID-19.

Plaintiff's objections to the vaccine mandate rests primarily on his disagreement with State Defendants' judgment regarding public health, which is insufficient to overcome the constitutionality of State Defendants' actions in enacting and promulgating the vaccine mandate, regardless of which level of scrutiny is applied. Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate there are serious questions going to the merits of his privacy and bodily autonomy claims, and that he is likely to succeed on those questions of merit.

2. Fourth Amendment Rights

Plaintiff argues any COVID-19 testing requirement is subject to the reasonable suspicion standards under the Fourth Amendment. ECF No. 21 at 21. However, the Proclamation does not contain or implicate a testing requirement. See ECF No. 21-1 at 41–53. Therefore, Plaintiff's Fourth Amendment claim is without merit. Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate there are serious questions going to the merits of his Fourth Amendment claim, and that he is likely to succeed on those questions of merit.

B. Irreparable Harm

Plaintiff's claims to irreparable harm seem to rest on his theories of privacy and bodily integrity, and his potential loss of supplemental income as a coach. ECF No. 21 at 25–26. A plaintiff seeking injunctive relief must "demonstrate that irreparable injury is likely in the absence of an injunction." Winter, 555 U.S. at 22 (emphasis in original) "Issuing a preliminary injunction based only on a possibility of irreparable harm is inconsistent with [the Supreme Court's] characterization of injunctive relief as an extraordinary remedy that may only be awarded upon a clear showing that the plaintiff is entitled to such relief." Id. "Irreparable harm is traditionally defined as harm for which there is no adequate legal remedy, such as an award of damages." Arizona Dream Act Coalition v. Brewer, 757 F.3d 1053, 1068 (9th Cir. 2014).

As previously discussed, the vaccine requirements under the Proclamation do not infringe upon Plaintiff's fundamental right to privacy and his decisions regarding bodily integrity. Moreover, it is well settled that loss of employment does not constitute irreparable harm. Sampson v. Murray, 415 U.S. 61, 92 n.68 (1974) (absent a "genuinely extraordinary situation," employment loss is not irreparable harm); Massachusetts Correction Officers Federated Union v. Baker, -- F. Supp. 3d ---, No. 21-11599-TSH, 2021 WL 4822154, at *7 (D. Mass. Oct. 15, 2021); Beckerich v. St. Elizabeth Med. Ctr., --- F. Supp. 3d ---, No. CIV 21-105-DLB-EBA, 2021 WL 4398027, at *6 (E.D. Ky. Sept. 24, 2021). Plaintiff's admission that the game fee he earns amounts to something less than minimum wage further weakens his argument for irreparable harm.

Finally, Plaintiff's delay in filing the present motion does not support his claim of irreparable harm. Plaintiff filed the motion on October 17, 2021, nearly two months after the issuance of the Proclamation. Plaintiff's dilatory filing "implies a lack of urgency and irreparable harm." *Oakland Trib., Inc. v. Chron.*Pub. Co., 762 F.2d 1374, 1377 (9th Cir. 1985). The Court finds Plaintiff has not carried his burden to demonstrate irreparable harm absent a temporary restraining order.

C. Balancing of Equities and Public Interest

"When the government is a party, these last two factors merge." Drakes Bay

Oyster Co. v. Jewell, 747 F.3d 1073, 1092 (9th Cir. 2014). "In each case, courts must balance the competing claims of injury and must consider the effect on each party of the granting or withholding of the requested relief." Winter, 555 U.S. at 24 (quotation marks and citation omitted). The Court must balance the hardships to the parties should the status quo be preserved against the hardships to the parties should Plaintiffs' requested relief be granted. "In exercising their sound discretion, courts of equity should pay particular regard for the public consequences in employing the extraordinary remedy of injunction." Id. (quotation omitted). "The public interest inquiry primarily addresses impact on non-parties rather than parties." League of Wilderness Defs./Blue Mountains Biodiversity Project v. Connaughton, 752 F.3d 755, 766 (9th Cir. 2014) (citation omitted). Regardless, the Court will not grant a preliminary injunction unless the public interests in favor of granting an injunction "outweigh other public interests that cut in favor of not issuing the injunction." Cottrell, 632 F.3d at 1138 (emphasis in original).

Here, the balancing of equities tips heavily in favor of the evidenced-backed decisions of the State regarding public health and safety measures. While the Court is sensitive to the potential loss of coaching opportunities that Plaintiff may face should his relationship with the State change, the balancing of harm and equities weighs in favor of State Defendants because there is a "legitimate and critical public interest in preventing the spread of COVID-19 by increasing the vaccination rate." Baker, 2021 WL 4822154, at *8. Moreover, the public interest in reducing the dangers and spread of COVID-19 would not be served by enjoining the Proclamation. District courts across the country have come to the same conclusion. See, e.g., Does 1-6 v. Mills, --- F. Supp. 3d ---, No. 1:21-CV-00242-JDL, 2021 WL 4783626, at *17 (D. Me. Oct. 13, 2021), aff'd, No. 21-1826, 2021 WL 4860328 (1st Cir. Oct. 19, 2021) (collecting cases). As one court noted "[w]eakening the State's response to a public-health crisis by enjoining it from enforcing measures employed specifically to stop the spread of COVID-19 is not in the public interest." Bimber's Delwood, Inc. v. James, 496 F. Supp. 3d 760, 789 (W.D.N.Y. 2020). Therefore, the Court finds the balance of equities tips in favor of State Defendants and that the public interest would not be served by enjoining the Proclamation.

CONCLUSION

The Court finds that Plaintiff's claims against Federal Defendants are properly dismissed for either a lack of jurisdiction or a failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. Additionally, Plaintiff has failed to satisfy either the Winter test or the Cottrell sliding scale test for the remaining claims against State Defendants. Therefore, Plaintiff is not entitled to the relief he seeks.
